Six Protective Factors: Key Elements for Supporting the Well-Being of Children and Families

1. Nurturing and Attachment: Stable caregivers who work to understand and meet the child's need for love, affection, and stimulation
2. Knowledge of Parenting and of Child and Youth Development: Understanding child development and parenting strategies that support physical, cognitive, language, social and emotional development
3. Parental Resilience: Managing stress and functioning well when faced with challenges, adversity and trauma
4. Social Connections: Positive relationships that provide emotional, informational, instrumental and spiritual support
5. Concrete Supports for Parents: Access to concrete support and services that address a family's needs and help minimize stress caused by challenges
6. Social and Emotional Competence of Children: Family and child interactions that help children develop the ability to communicate clearly, recognize and regulate their emotions and establish and maintain relationships

Pioneers Center

402-436-5437 \ 6601 Pioneers Blvd

Provides short-term care to youth 12-19, who do not have immediate access to a safe or more appropriate living arrangement.

The National Runaway Safeline (NRS) recently announced the expansion of eligibility for its Home Free program to include youth victims of human trafficking up through age 21.

The expansion supports the universal recognition that runaway, homeless, and child welfare adjudicated youth are the highest risk group for exploitation. Expanding eligibility through age 21 further aligns the Home Free program with the service eligibility age ranges of many of the state and federally funded homeless youth housing programs. NRS maintains an extensive nationwide database of trafficking-related resources and social service providers.

The Home Free program is a partnership between NRS and Greyhound Bus Lines to offer free Greyhound tickets to homeless and runaway youth who wish to return home, if safe and appropriate to do so, or to travel to an approved alternative living arrangement.

Visit <http://www.1800runaway.org/2012/05/a-ticket-home/> to learn more about the Home Free program.

Visit <http://www.1800runaway.org/2016/03/free-greyhound-tickets-to-homeless-youth-home-free-program-expands/> to learn more about the expansion of Home Free eligibility.

Resources in Spanish

Selected publications on child abuse and neglect, prevention, adoption, and more are available in Spanish. Our general Spanish resources are available at <https://www.childwelfare.gov/spanish/#tab=general>. To view our factsheets for families and other publications in Spanish, including a complete A to Z list of the titles we offer, visit <https://www.childwelfare.gov/catalog/spanishindex/>

In the interest of better serving the needs of Spanish-speaking families and professionals who work with them, we developed a list of child welfare terms, English to Spanish (and Spanish to English), to ensure consistency and cultural relevance in our publications. By making this document available to others, we hope to support other organizations also striving to improve their communications and to promote, where possible, consistency throughout the child welfare field.

Our website also includes a Working With Hispanic Families section that offers a culture guide, research on efforts informing Administration for Children and Families programs and policies supporting Hispanic children and families, and State and local examples. In 2015, we launched a new issue brief that addresses child welfare's work with immigrant children and families; examines current issues related to immigration and child welfare; provides examples of programs and promising practices; and points to resources for professionals, families, and youth. Read Immigration and Child Welfare today.

Lincoln, NE 68506

Website: <http://bvbh.net/content/offices/lincoln.html>

Contact: 402-231-4014

Hours: 9am-5pm

Services: Mental Health Services

Our mental health staff actively treat both adults and youth who are experiencing a variety of emotional and/or behavioral difficulties. These mental health issues may include depression, anxiety, anger control, family conflict, childhood disorders along with many other behavioral health areas. Counseling will be provided on an individual, family, group and/or marital basis. Medication Management, Strong Ties Family Support Group and Adult Day Treatment(ADT) services are also provided.

Community Support Services

Our community support staff provides case management services to adults who are diagnosed with severe and persistent mental illnesses. Providing these services within a Recovery Focused framework helps people attain a successful outcome in their daily living that is both individualized and specific to their own needs.

Adult Day Treatment Services (ADT) is an intermediate level of treatment for men and women who are having difficulty coping with a behavioral health problem(s) that is significantly impacting their daily functioning. These problems/symptoms may be related to depression (mood variability), anxiety, psychosis or other diagnosed mental health conditions. ADT is designed to provide intensive short term individually planned clinical interventions for individuals who are experiencing either a sudden or increasing difficulty in managing their behavioral health symptoms. ADT is a considered to be a reasonable alternative to being hospitalized or when more intensive treatment than outpatient counseling is necessary (ie: being discharged from the hospital). Services may be accessed between 3-6 hours a day, 5 days a week (M-F) or can be varied upon the individual's needs.

Strong Ties Family Support Group -free support group for spouses, siblings, children (age 18 and up), family members, friends and significant others who are involved with someone who is dealing with a mental illness. This group is an avenue to give/receive information and support from people who share similar circumstances. It's a safe environment to ask questions about how to best help the person you care about during different phases of his/her mental illness. Strong Ties will be led by different staff of Blue Valley Behavioral Health who have expertise in providing treatment and other mental health services. Various materials and other resources to enhance learning opportunities will be available. Strong Ties will be provided on the 1st and 3rd Wednesday of each month from 6-7:30pm at the Lincoln office, 3901 Normal Blvd. Suite 201. Please contact the BVBH Lincoln office at 402-261-4017 for further information.

Child Guidance Center

2444 O St.

Lincoln, NE 68510

Website: www.child-guidance.org

Contact: 402-475-7666

Languages: Services can be provided in English, Spanish, Vietnamese and ASL.

Services: Outpatient services are available to any child with mental, emotional, or behavioral issues—large or small. Services range from brief, solution-oriented counseling to intensive long-term psychotherapy. Outpatient therapy can occur at the main office or in a number of public schools.

The Extended Day Treatment Program is designed for children ages 5 (already in kindergarten) to 11 with serious emotional and/or behavioral challenges who are at risk for out-of-home placement or hospitalization. The program operates daily after school and during the summer to provide children with treatment for trauma and attachment disorders and to improve coping skills, social skills, and community functioning. Each child is assigned a therapist and is involved in family, individual and group therapy as well as psycho-educational groups. Parental involvement is required and children must have Medicaid to be eligible. Meals are provided and transportation can be arranged.

The Sexual Misconduct Treatment Program is designed for youth ages 12-18 who demonstrate sexually abusive behaviors. The program offers assessment and outpatient services, including group, individual, and family therapy to assist youth in developing alternatives to acting out sexually and address the underlying issues that may have contributed to their misconduct. The treatment process is tailored to youths' developmental level and relies heavily on the involvement of parents. The Therapeutic Group Home is available to males ages 13-17, who have acted out in a sexual manner and require an intensive level of care in a safe and nurturing environment. This 24-hour facility offers youth comprehensive, sex-offense specific treatment in a staff-secure setting. An Intensive Out Patient Service alternative is available to youth who are in need of a partial service level of care based on the risk to the individual and community safety.

Choices is a substance abuse program for high school students identified as having an issue related to drugs and/or alcohol – either for themselves, their peers, or their parents. Group and individual therapy focus on making healthy decisions and is provided in most public high schools.

Direct Case Placement: The core of the VLP has been matching volunteer attorneys with individuals who need legal assistance on a pro bono or reduced fee basis. VLP will continue to offer direct case placement through its network of pro bono attorneys, but the intake process and referral source has changed. VLP no longer has the staff to operate a separate intake hotline/process. Referrals and intakes will now be received in the following ways:

Referrals from Self Help Centers: Some clients who visit the Self-Help Center have legal issues/situations where staff would advise them to seek legal counsel rather than proceeding as a pro se litigant. In these situations, VLP staff will conduct a client intake, check conflicts, and work to place the case through VLP's volunteer network.

Referrals from Domestic Violence Shelters: VLP has had a long standing commitment to serving victims of domestic violence. When the need for legal services arises, domestic violence shelters will con-tact VLP directly to complete the intake process. In these situations, VLP staff will check for conflicts, and work to place the case through VLP's volunteer network.

Referrals from Legal Aid of Nebraska (LAN): VLP will accept 40 referrals a month from LAN. To be accepted by VLP, the referrals must be sent with a completed LAN intake and fall within the VLP priorities.

Referrals from private attorneys where there is not a self-help desk located in their community.

The Self Help Center is located inside the Courthouse:

Lancaster County: Open Monday 10:00am-2:00pm and Thursday 9:00am-1:00pm.

Contact: 402-423-6464

Services: Behavior problems and troubles can start at very early ages. No matter what the misbehavior, Behaven Kids uses practical, proven techniques to help children and families. Behaven Kids has developed programs and services, like the specialized day program, to help thousands of children and parents make the changes necessary to be successful. Each focuses on building positive behavior in children who have mild to chronic behavior problems. Today's ever expanding treatment options remain focused on the healing, hope and education that translates into real parenting solutions. These include family therapy, child behavior coaching, award-winning books and training workshops. Medicaid, Title XX, Private Insurance, and Private Pay are accepted.

Malone Community Center

402- 474-1110 \ 2032 U St.

-Early Education: this new Early Childhood Education Center will use a Montessori inspired curriculum weekdays from 7:30am until 5:30pm for children ages 3 to 5 years old. We need to meet you and your child(ren), before they start, and we must approve your child(ren's) enrollment prior to starting.

-Out of School Program: targets school aged children between the ages 5 - 13. Monday - Friday we pick our program participants up from school and bring them to the Center where we have a snack after arrival. We provide academic support, structured recreation, arts and crafts, computer and fun time, health and nutrition education, and cultural awareness. On out-of-school days we provide all day programming including breakfast, lunch and snack. Besides our regular pro-gram components we also go on daily fieldtrips. Application and verifications required.

-Talented Tenth: provides African American males between the ages 13 - 18 with cultural awareness, social support, and academic enrichment. The Youth Empowerment Curriculum draws strength from the African American cultural ideal of collective work and responsibility, by creating a cohort of adolescent scholars who will experience the curriculum together and by matching them with mentors. It aims to motivate the youth to work for the betterment of themselves as individuals, and as conscious and committed members of their families and communities. The program's goal is to help the participants develop leadership and graduate from high school.

Head Start/ Early Head Start are child development programs that serve low-income families, including those with special needs, and their families.

Head Start Child Development Center

The Head Start Child Development Center serves 75 Head Start and Early Head Start children with educational child care at no cost to eligible families.

Educare

Provide high-quality education, health care, and other services to the neediest children age birth to 5 in cities across the country based on the following principles:

- 1.) Educare is a program based on early education practices that ensure the school readiness of children most at risk for academic failure;
- 2.) Educare is a place of learning that sends a clear message that we must invest in early childhood education because children are born learning;
- 3.) Educare is a partnership of philanthropists, Early Head Start and Head Start providers, and school officials dedicated to narrowing the achievement gap for children in their communities; and
- 4.) Educare is a platform for raising awareness of the value and vital importance of learning during a child's first five years of life.

Educare of Lincoln is located in the city's Belmont neighborhood, which has one of the highest rates of children in poverty in Lincoln (19.3% in 2011). Educare of Lincoln will give more low-income children and families in Lincoln the opportunity for high-quality full-day, full-year child development services.

Guidelines for Children Staying Home Alone

Nebraska has no law that states a specific age when children can be left home alone. Each situation must be evaluated on a case by case basis considering a number of factors. These are the guidelines that Children and Family Services use to help parents decide what is appropriate. Preschool age children (age 6 or under) should never be left alone. For older children the parent must consider:

1. The child's age, cognitive abilities, maturity, and level of responsibility.
2. The length of time the child will be alone.
3. The circumstances under which they will be unsupervised. Is it day time or night time, will the child be asleep or awake, is the home in a safe neighborhood?
4. Availability of a responsible adult to assist. Is there a neighbor the child can go to, or can the parent come home quickly?
5. Ability of the child to phone for assistance. Does the child know how to reach the parent or a relative who could respond?
6. Child's ability to act in an emergency. Does the child know how to exit the home in a fire, what to do if a stranger?
7. Child's feelings about being alone. Is he/she afraid, or comfortable with the plan?
8. Child's ability to care for him/herself while alone. Can he/she fix a meal or snack, entertain themselves without getting into trouble?
9. Can the child be trusted to follow household rules such as not having other kid in the home when parents are gone, not using the stove?
10. Are dangerous things available to the child? Are the guns locked up, drugs and chemicals not accessible?
11. Is the child expected to supervise younger children?

The Department generally considers children under the age of 11 to be unable to supervise children under the age of 6. If more than one child will be left alone, the interaction of the children must also be considered. Will they play well together or will they fight?

If the child is alone and someone calls law enforcement, the responding officer will consider these factors to determine if the plan is appropriate. If the officer determines that the child is not able to stay alone safely, it is possible the parent will get a ticket for child neglect.

Nebraska has a specific law about leaving children unattended in a motor vehicle.

Nebraska Resource Project for Vulnerable Young Children

Website: <http://www.nebraskababies.com/content/cpp-provider-list>

The Nebraska Resource Project for Vulnerable Young Children (NRPVYC) is part of UNL-Center on Children, Families and the Law (UNL-CCFL) and focuses on improving outcomes for maltreated young children in Nebraska. The NRPVYC works both at a systems level in partnership with other Nebraska organizations and on a local case level with court teams, state agencies, local organizations and local providers to address the needs of young children in their courts and on their caseloads. Systems issues include expanding and stabilizing evidence-based practices for young children like Child-Parent Psychotherapy (CPP), increasing access to early intervention (EDN) services, supporting expansion of problem-solving and therapeutic court processes especially those involving young children, utilizing reflective practice for professionals, and increasing access to high quality child care. Case level issues focus on developmental needs, placements, the parent-child relationship, child care and medical care. The NRPVYC also provides training to caseworkers, attorneys, judges and others on evidence-based practices, identifying trauma in young children, representing young children and other issues.

Diversion Services offer youth who have committed non-violent law violations in Lancaster County the opportunity to avoid further involvement in the juvenile justice system through successful completion of the program. Youth are provided with consequences based on restorative justice principles to help them comprehend and accept the consequences of their behavior. This may involve a variety of group educational opportunities, Teen Court and community service hours.

Life Skills Reporting Center

For youth who are in need of a more structured environment during the day or evening, the Reporting Center offers an opportunity to remain in their home placement. The center emphasizes the philosophy of positive reinforcements and asset building to encourage new healthier behaviors and major accomplishments. The primary focus of the day program is academic performance and the primary focus of the evening program is skill building, employment, independent living and improved decision making; all supported by a variety of curricula and skill building activities.

Electronic Monitoring/Global Positioning System

This service is time-limited and provided to youth whose behaviors put themselves or their community safety at risk. The service allows for youth to be monitored when there has been a history of unaccountable time. GPS is utilized for short periods of time to ensure stability with the youth and provide rehabilitative services to them.

People's City Mission

110 Q St.
Lincoln, NE 68508

Contact: 402-475-1303

Services: Lincoln Safe Place-A national youth outreach program established in 1983. Gives youth in crisis access to immediate help and safety.

In July 2011 Peoples City Mission was awarded a contract to be the lead local safe place agency in Lincoln from National Safe Place. Young people can enter over 50 safe place sites across Lincoln in order to get help and safety. Designated sites are:

- Lincoln Fire and Rescue Stations
- Senator McGill's Office (Nebraska State Capitol Rm 1212)
- Lincoln Journal Star
- Hy-Vee
- U-Stop
- Whitehead Oil Company office building
- Scooter's Coffeehouses
- The Bay (Lincoln's only indoor skate park)
- The Gameroom
- Campus Life
- JPK Investment Motors
- YWCA
- News Link

*When a young person arrives at one of these sites, trained staff will provide youth safety in their location, get a general idea of what is wrong and call People's City Mission, the Safe Place Agency to pick up the troubled youth so that they can be brought to the shelter where they will be offered supportive services to meet their needs.

The HUB

Services: The HUB focuses on 3 areas-Education, Employment, and Empowerment.

Education–GED Classes-Free. If interested please attend orientation-held every Tuesday from 9 am – 11 am 1 pm – 3 pm

-Back on Track/High School Graduation Initiative-Programs offered within 4 high schools and in partnership with LPS. HUB's staff take referrals for youth who are in danger of falling behind in credits, are habitually truant, or are facing barriers to preventing regular school attendance. The program is currently offered in Lincoln High, Southeast, Northeast, and North Star High Schools.

Employment–Project HIRE-Helping Improve Readiness for Employment—a 16 week program designed for youth ages 16-18 that are in need of employment skills. Consists of 3 phases: 1) Job readiness training. 2) Job Searching 3) An 8 week supervised employment phase.

Project Hire meets M-F from 3:30 pm – 5:30 pm (1 pm – 3 pm during summer break)

-Youth Build-a leadership development program designed to assist motivated young adults ages 16-24 to earn their GED and obtain hands-on career development and construction skills. Participants will work part time on their GED, and work closely with a skilled and experienced construction supervisor to learn components involved in building a home.

Empowerment–Lancaster County Reentry Project-HUB transition specialists work closely with every youth returning to Lancaster County after a stay in the Kearney or Geneva Rehabilitation and Treatment Centers. Staff communicate with other community supports to provide successful transition back into the community.

-Project Everlast Central Access Navigator-Helps navigate resources for young people aging out of foster care. Provides a Central Access Navigator to help young people determine what services they need, access those services, and ensure that they're working together to provide a customized system of support.

-Outreach Services-Youth will be connected with a staff member who will find out what specific needs the youth has and assist the youth in meeting those immediate needs. Staff will work with them until they are out of crisis.

*Transportation assistance in the form of Star Tran Ride Bus Passes are available as well.

Project H2O/Youth Act-Empowerment program for females ages 16-18. The program teaches participants how to overcome issues in their lives that have hindered their progress towards becoming successful adults. Provides a safe and caring environment for young women to explore and discuss issues. Participants will also engage in youth-driven community service projects designed to allow the youth the opportunity to give back to the community in a meaningful way.

Heartland Big Brother/Big Sisters

Administrative Office

6201 Havelock Avenue

Lincoln, NE 68507

Contact: 402-464-2227

Services: Big Brothers Big Sisters targets the children who need us most, including those living in single parent homes, growing up in poverty and coping with parental incarceration. Starting something begins with finding a great match between a Big and a Little. Making these matches, and performing all the background work involved with them, is possible because of donations from people like you. It's also why we're able to offer such a wide variety of programs that pair children, ages 6 through 18, with role models in one-to-one relationships.

Core Programs include Community-Based Mentoring, School-Based Mentoring, Mentoring Children of Incarcerated Parents and Teen Parent Mentoring.

TeamMates Mentoring Program

6801 'O' Street

Website: www.teammates.org

Contact: 402-323-6252 Toll Free: 877-531-8326

Services: Tom and Nancy Osborne founded the TeamMates Mentoring Program in 1991 in an effort to provide support and encouragement to school aged youth. The goal of the program is to see youth graduate from high school and pursue post-secondary education. To reach this goal, youth meet one hour per week with a caring adult who serves as a mentor. Mentors are volunteers from the community who have dedicated themselves to making a difference in the life of a young person. Mentors give youth a sense of hope, purpose and vision. The TeamMates Mentoring Program currently provides a mentor for over 7,000 youth across Nebraska and Iowa. ***Most school have a TeamMates facilitator—contact your LPS School to inquire.

Services:

-Early Education: this new Early Childhood Education Center will use a Montessori inspired curriculum weekdays from 7:30am until 5:30pm for children ages 3 to 5 years old. We need to meet you and your child(ren), before they start, and we must approve your child(ren's) enrollment prior to starting.

-Out of School Program: targets school aged children between the ages 5 - 13. Monday - Friday we pick our program participants up from school and bring them to the Center where we have a snack after arrival. We provide academic support, structured recreation, arts and crafts, computer and fun time, health and nutrition education, and cultural awareness. On out-of-school days we provide all day programming including breakfast, lunch and snack. Besides our regular pro-gram components we also go on daily fieldtrips. Application and verifications required.

-Talented Tenth: provides African American males between the ages 13 - 18 with cultural awareness, social support, and academic enrichment. The Youth Empowerment Curriculum draws strength from the African American cultural ideal of collective work and responsibility, by creating a cohort of adolescent scholars who will experience the curriculum together and by matching them with mentors. It aims to motivate the youth to work for the betterment of themselves as individuals, and as conscious and committed members of their families and communities. The program's goal is to help the participants develop leadership and graduate from high school.

-Moving Forward to End Domestic Violence: The Malone Center is working to financially empower women by enabling survivors of interpersonal violence to achieve financial empowerment and job readiness through culturally appropriate services.

The Landlord - Tenant Act

In 1974, the Nebraska Legislature passed the Uniform Residential Landlord and Tenant Act. This law governs oral and written agreements for residential property, and restricts what may be included in a lease. It also defines minimum duties of landlords and tenants. The act does not apply to living arrangements such as occupancy of an institution, a fraternity or sorority, condominium units, premises used primarily for agricultural purposes and temporary occupancy in a hotel or motel. There is also a landlord-tenant act relating to mobile homes, which is not covered in this pamphlet.

What is a lease?

A lease is a contract between a landlord and a tenant, in which the parties agree on terms for renting property. Once the parties enter into a lease, they are usually legally bound by its terms and provisions, as long as these terms are not contrary to the landlord-tenant law.

Rental agreements are sometimes oral rather than written, particularly for situations like the month-to-month rental of an apartment. While an oral lease may be legally binding, it is better to have it in writing so both parties' obligations are clearly spelled out, and misunderstandings are avoided.

What should be included in the lease? The lease should include:

- the address of the property being rented.
- the name and address of the landlord.
- the amount of rent.
- the amount and nature of any deposits required.
- the date rent is to be paid each month.
- the term of the lease (for example, some leases obligate the tenant to rent the property for six months or for a full year, while other leases specify a month-to-month tenancy).
- the notification requirements for ending the lease.

The lease should state who is responsible for paying the various utility bills and may spell out each party's responsibility for caring for the premises. Some leases also state the names or the number of people who may live in the house or apartment.

Many landlords choose to use a form or pre-printed lease agreement. Like any legal document, such an agreement should be reviewed carefully to make certain all relevant provisions are included, and that both parties understand what is being agreed upon. Do not sign a lease with blank spaces, and do not rely on promises made by one party but not included in the lease.

What cannot be included in a lease?

Leases sometimes include clauses which are not legally enforceable (for example, provisions allowing the landlord to take possession of the tenant's property or to lock the tenant out if the tenant fails to pay the rent on time). The fact they are in the lease does not make them legal. In addition, both landlords and tenants may have other rights and obligations not spelled out in the lease. The fact they are not in the lease does not take those rights away.

Some provisions that are prohibited in a lease include:

- Agreements to pay attorney fees
- Waivers of any rights or remedies under the Landlord and Tenant Act
- Confessions of judgment on claims from the rental agreement
- Limits on liability for the landlord's negligence. If you have a question about the provisions of a lease, talk to your attorney before you sign it. If a landlord uses provisions that he/she knows to be prohibited, the tenant may be able to recover actual damages and attorney fees.

What are the landlord's rights? An owner of residential property may rent it on almost any terms and for such legal uses as he or she desires, subject to the restrictions in the landlord-tenant act. If the owner sells the premises, the new owner is bound by the existing lease. The landlord has the right to:

- receive rent and collect damages for misuse or negligent destruction of the property; including damages in excess of the tenant's deposit.
- charge whatever rent the landlord desires (unless your community has rent control laws).
- establish terms and conditions governing the tenant's conduct.

Rules must be applied to all tenants in a fair manner, and notice of those rules must be given to the tenant at the time the lease is signed. Rules adopted after the tenant signs the lease are enforceable if notice is given to the tenant, and if the rule does not substantially change the rental agreement. Rules must promote the appearance, convenience or safety of the property or the welfare of the tenants, preserve the property from abuse, or make a fair distribution of services and facilities for tenants. The landlord's right to establish such rules does not give him or her the right to discriminate against prospective tenants on the basis of such factors as race, religion, or national origin.

What are the tenant's rights?

The tenant may possess the rental property until the lease expires, as long as he or she performs all legal obligations. The tenant may use the property in any lawful way, subject to the restrictions in the lease. The tenant must be given, in writing, the name and address of the property owner and the name and address of any person authorized to manage the premises. This information must be kept current to reflect any changes.

Can the tenant sub-let the property? Unless prohibited by the lease, the tenant may sub-lease residential property. However, leases often prohibit subleasing, or require the landlord's consent to do so. Sub-leasing can cause problems, because the original tenant then becomes both a landlord and a tenant. The original tenant must fulfill his or her obligations under the original lease agreement, even if the property has been sub-let.

When can the landlord enter the property?

The landlord may enter a rental dwelling to inspect the premises, make repairs, supply services or exhibit the property to workers, prospective tenants or purchasers. In such instances, the landlord should give the tenant at least one day's notice that he or she intends to enter, and should enter only at reasonable times. The landlord may enter without the tenant's consent only if there is an emergency, or if the tenant has abandoned the premises.

The lease may require tenants who intend to be away from their apartment for a period of time more than seven days to notify the landlord of the absence, so the landlord does not assume the property has been abandoned.

Landlord-Tenant Duties

Who must maintain the property?

The Nebraska Landlord-Tenant Act requires landlords to comply with the community's minimum housing codes concerning health and safety. If repairs cannot be negotiated between the landlord and tenant, violations of the housing codes should be reported directly to the local housing office.

If the community does not have a housing code, the law imposes certain minimum responsibilities on the landlord. He or she must make all repairs to keep the premises in a fit and habitable condition; keep the common areas clean and safe; maintain whatever facilities are supplied, such as the furnace, plumbing and elevators; provide garbage cans and supply reasonable heat and hot and cold running water. A landlord and tenant can, under some circumstances, enter into a written contract providing for the tenant to take care of some of these duties, provided the tenant receives some benefit for doing so. But without such a contract, the landlord is responsible. The tenant must comply with all community housing codes. He or she must keep the dwelling unit as clean and safe as conditions permit, dispose of garbage in a clean and safe manner, keep the plumbing clean and use the electrical, plumbing, heating and cooling facilities in a reasonable manner. The tenant may not deliberately or negligently destroy, damage, or remove any part of the premises. The property must be left in as clean a condition, excepting ordinary wear and tear, as it was when the tenancy began. If the tenant independently does repairs, painting or fixing up, he or she usually has no legal claim for reimbursement from the landlord. Finally, tenants and guests must conduct themselves in a manner which will not disturb their neighbors.

May the landlord shut off services?

A landlord may not interrupt electric, gas, water or other essential services to the tenant, nor may he or she attempt to recover possession of a dwelling unit by interrupting such services.

A landlord may not take retaliatory action, such as increasing rent or decreasing services, if a tenant complains to a government agency about the condition of the premises, or organizes or participates in a tenant's group.

Deposits and Rent

Can the landlord require a deposit?

The landlord may require the tenant to pay as much as one month's rent as a security deposit, and as much as one-quarter of one month's rent as a pet deposit. For example, if the rent is $200 per month, the deposit required cannot exceed $200, plus $50 if the tenant has a pet. When the lease ends, the landlord may apply the deposit to unpaid rent and to any damage done to the property. This may include the costs of cleaning the apartment, but it is not intended to cover normal wear and tear.

Upon demand, the tenant has a right to receive, within 14 days, the balance of the deposit and an itemization of any costs paid out of that deposit. (It is best to put the request in writing.) The tenant should give the landlord a forwarding address so the deposit may be refunded.

Many disputes over deposit refunds could be avoided if the tenant would make a list — preferably before moving in, or immediately after moving in — of any existing defects or damage in the apartment. The list should be dated, and if possible signed by the tenant and the landlord, indicating both parties agree on what damage already existed. Both parties should keep a copy of the list. It is also recommended to make a similar list upon moving out to help in settling disputes. Disputes over deposit refunds often must be resolved in small claims court if the parties cannot agree.

When is rent payable?

Rent is payable at the time designated in the lease. The landlord does not need to give any demand or notice for the rent to be paid. If there is no written lease, the rent is due at the beginning of the term. If the term is longer than one month, rent is payable in equal monthly installments at the beginning of the month.

May the landlord lock out a tenant if the rent is not paid?

If the rent is not paid on time, the landlord must follow certain notice requirements as spelled out in the Landlord-Tenant Act. The landlord must demand in writing that the rent be paid within three days, and that if it is not paid, the rental agreement will be terminated. If the tenant pays within the three days, the landlord may not end the rental agreement.

If the rent is not paid after three days, the landlord may terminate the rental agreement. If the tenant refuses to leave voluntarily, the landlord must file suit to have the tenant evicted. The landlord may not lock out a tenant who has not paid rent, and may not take possession of the tenant's property or remove the tenant's belongings. A court order of eviction is required before a tenant can be forced to move.

Can the landlord raise the rent?

If the landlord and tenant have a written lease specifying the amount of rent, the rent cannot be raised during the term of the lease. In a month-to-month lease, oral or written, the landlord cannot raise the rent without giving the tenant 30-day notice that the rent will be raised on or before a rental payment date, beginning at the next rental payment date or later. For example, if the landlord wishes to raise the rent effective October 1, notice must be given to the tenant on or before September 1.

A provision in the lease allowing the landlord to raise the rent without notice, or with less than 30 days' notice, would be an example of a clause which is unenforceable under the law, even if the tenant agreed to it at the time the lease was signed.

There is no limit under state law on the amount of rent a landlord may charge or the number of times it can be raised, provided proper notice is given. However, if the landlord makes frequent, unreasonable increases in the rent, the tenant may wish to consult a lawyer to see if there are any legal remedies available.

When my rent be withheld?

There are very few circumstances in which a tenant is legally justified in withholding rent. To protect yourself it is best to talk to a lawyer before withholding rent.

The law provides that if the landlord fails to provide essential services such as reasonable heat or running water, the tenant may give written notice to the landlord of the condition, and may arrange for reasonable amounts of these services and deduct their actual cost from the rent. The tenant may also be entitled to reduced rent during the time these services are not provided, or may find other housing and be excused from paying rent during the time alternate housing was necessary. There are other situations, such as damage by fire or other casualty, in which rent may be reduced or the lease terminated.

Ending a Lease

Is notice required to end a lease?

A month-to-month lease may be terminated by either party giving written notice to the other at least 30 days prior to a rental payment date. The lease would then end on the designated rental payment date. For example: If you rent an apartment on a month-to-month basis, paying rent on the first day of each month, and you wish to move out on October 1, you must give notice on or before September 1. You may not give notice on September 15 that you intend to move on October 15. If you gave notice on September 15, the first day you could move out without penalty would be November 1. Likewise, if the landlord wants you to move out on October 1, he or she must give you notice on or before September 1. Unless the lease states a definite term, a lease is week-to-week in the case of a roomer paying weekly rent, and in all other cases is month-to-month. However, not all leases with monthly payments are month-to-month leases. The lease may be for a set period of time, with special notice required to terminate.

If you have a lease with a fixed term, be sure to read it carefully for any special requirements to terminate the lease. In some cases, the lease will simply end after the six months or one year is up. If the lease does not provide for this, however (and most do not), it will automatically convert to a month-to-month tenancy after the term is up. The notice requirements noted above (30 days prior to a rental payment date) would then take effect.

Can the lease be canceled before it expires?

If one of the parties violates important conditions of the lease or of the landlord-tenant law, the lease may be terminated. The lease itself may state certain circumstances under which the tenancy will end.

As previously noted, if the tenant fails to pay the rent, the landlord may notify the tenant the lease will end if the rent is not paid within three days. If a tenant fails to comply with terms and conditions other than the payment of rent, he or she must be given 14 days in which to correct the offending behavior. Similarly, if the tenant believes the landlord is not fulfilling his or her duties under the lease or under the landlord-tenant act, the tenant must give the landlord notice of the problem and 14 days in which to correct it. In either case, the notice may state if the condition is not taken care of within 14 days, the lease will end in not less than 30 days.

In the case of serious violations (such as shutting off utilities or essential services), or repeated violations, either party may choose to end the lease under the provisions of the law. Terminating a lease is a serious matter which may have financial consequences for both parties. Talk to your lawyer before deciding to proceed.

Depending upon the circumstances and the reasons the lease was terminated, either the landlord or the tenant may be able to recover damages and attorney fees as a result of the termination.

Does notice have to be in writing?

In most cases, yes. For example, a notice that rent is past due or that certain repairs are required must be in writing. Notices to terminate the tenancy must be in writing. In some situations, the landlord-tenant law states that "written or actual" notice must be given. In other cases, the law states only that one party must give the other “notice” before entering the premises (for example, the law says the landlord must give “one day’s notice” to the tenant).

To be on the safe side, and to prevent misunderstandings, it is generally best to put in writing all notices between the landlord and the tenant, and to date the notice and keep a copy. For specific situations, you may wish to consult the landlord-tenant law.
